Official Reply To Pope To Be Sent This Week

Wilson's Message To Russia Indicates Rejection

President Sends Greetings To Moscow Convention And Promises Material Assistance-Democracy Must Triumph

WASHINGTON, AUG. 27.—That the United States will reject the peace proposals of his holiness Benedict XV, because they have failed to take into consideration the necessity for the overthrow of Germany's autocracy, was considered certain today.

Simultaneously with the intimation that the reply to the pope will go forward this week, the state department made public the text of a cablegram of greeting sent by the president of the great council of Russian people now in session in Moscow.

Free Russia Will Triumph.

This greeting, sent in behalf of the American people, expressed the belief of the president that a free Russia will triumph "against all enemies within and without," and pledged the United States again as ready to give "every material and moral assistance" to the Russian government in the "promotion of the common cause in which the two nations are unselfishly united."

Officials declared that they considered the president's messacre to Russia at the present time most significant. While both the state department and the white house declined to make any statement regarding when the note to the pope will be completed it was strongly intimated that it already has been about completed by the president and that it will go forward this week.

MOSCOW, SUNDAY, AUG. 26.—Premier Kerensky, who came to Moscow yesterday to attend the national conference which is now being held for consideration of the military and political problems which confront the country, reviewed troops at the Hippodrome today and in addressing them said he was convinced by the valor they were showing that they would be able to drive back the enemy at the front and crush any attempt at a counter revolution.

General Korniloff, the commander-in-chief, arrived from Petrograd today and was greeted by great crowds. In an address he said it was a source of satisfaction to be able to tell the army that Moscow was the watchword for the welfare of the country and war to a victorious end.

Sinking Fund Trustees To To Name Salaried Clerk

Examiner Heck Says Coshocton Is First City To Pay All Light Bills For Light Along Railroad Right-of-ways

Council last night under the suspension of rules gave first, second and third readings to, and passed an ordinance creating the office of clerk of the board of sinking fund trustees.

The ordinance fixes the salary of the office at $300 a year payable in monthly installments of $25 each.

E. S. Gaumer stated last night that the clerk of the board will probably be appointed about October 1 as the ordinance is not effective until 30 days after its passage. The new appointee will serve until his successor is appointed and qualifies.

In the past the city auditor has acted as clerk of the board but Examiner William Heck held this to be illegal and the ordinance was framed and passed to secure legal approval of the clerk's actions.

To Borrow Money.

City Auditor May Name 4 Assessors

Altho it was argued last fall that the taxing power should not be taken out of the hands of the people, the people it seems do not care to avail themselves of their power.

Four assessors of real property must be named, one for each ward in the city, and no one has filed nomination papers. Unless candidates file petitions by September 6 the city auditor will name persons to act in that capacity. Two percent of the voters in a ward must sign the candidate's petition.

Assessors are voted for on a separate and non partisan ballot.

Tiverton Dems Have Trouble

Reports from Tiverton township are to the effect that the Democrats are having troubles of their own.

It is claimed that the central committeeman did not advertise a meeting for the general endorsement of candidates at the coming election, but instead called in by night a few voters and picked a ticket.

It is said that many of the voters named for places of the ticket refuse to serve. One candidate, who according to reports announced his own name, it is said will make the race. The result of the matter is yet to be foreseen but it is predicted that it does not forbode good for the Tiverton democratic candidates.

It is said the trouble dates back to a special school election held years ago.

THE MENACE OF PEACE

Sweeping aside the clouds of misrepresentation and diplomatic mists of German intrigue, it is evident that the Pope's peace proffer expresses in a general way the wishes of Austria. It is also evident that at least the Centrist party in Germany will also look so far as it can the offer of the head of the Catholic church.

It was the complaint of the enemies of Germany that the war caught them unprepared. IF THEY ARE NOT CAREFUL GERMAN INTRIGUE WILL ALSO CATCH THEM UNPREPARED FOR PEACE. The desire for peace before the war began was advanced as an indication of purity on the part of English, French and American statesmanship. This same statesmanship should not be fooled again by permitting the peace flirtations of Prussianism to rope them in as a set of "easy marks."

We saw the argument advanced the other day that, as we went to war largely on account of German submarine ruthlessness, so when Germany is willing to let up on her submarine campaign we should be willing to lay down our arms.

Assuming that we had valid grounds to enter the war, nothing could be more foolish than the above argument. To conquer the submarine menace does not mean chasing the U-boats out of the Atlantic, nor in taking their bases at Zeebrugge and at other points in the North Atlantic. The real base of the submarine nuisance is at Potsdam. THE VIOLATION OF PUBLIC RIGHT, WHETHER ON LAND OR SEA, IN BELGIUM OR OVER PARIS OR LONDON IS THE REAL PROBLEM WHICH ALLIED ARMS IS CALLED ON TO SOLVE BEFORE THERE CAN BE A REAL END TO THIS UNSPEAKABLE WAR.

It would seem that if the United States had a clearly defined aim in entering the war that aim is the COMPLETE DESTRUCTION OF PRUSSIAN IMPERIALISM. This does not mean that we are to force on Germany the Russian or the French or the English or the American system. It means simply that Germany must come bearing a message to the world that nations both great and small must be permitted to work out their destinies without the shadow of Prussian imperialism hovering over them as a threat by day and a nightmare by night; that the world is no longer an open field for the irresponsible condition of a set of international pirates.

It is true that the message of imperialism is not confined alone to Germany. But it is in that country, or at least in the ruling state of the German compact, Prussia, that imperialism finds its highest and most terrifying development. Thru a series of tremendous inventions in the nineteenth and this century, the world has come to be a small circle. For thirty years it was seen that further peaceful evolution was impossible and the equality of nations a delusion if the Prussian idea of the right to dominate mankind by force could be carried into effect.

Just now it is evident that Germany desires peace more than war. FOR THAT VERY REASON PEACE AT THIS JUNCTURE, A NEGOTIATED PEACE, IS QUITE AS TERRIFYING AS WAR. A peace now would simply evidence our desire to postpone the ultimate settlement of the question of imperialism or no imperialism for twenty years more. The issue once having been raised between Germany's desire for world domination and the world's determination to resist German aggression, it should not now be put aside by the quibbling of statesmen and diplomats. The final appeal to the sword has been made and the sword of Germany's enemies should not be sheathed until Germany has been convinced by her own kind of argument, the only kind to which she appears to be susceptible, that the world is not afraid of her frightfulness and will not submit to her ruthlessness.

We do not mean by this that the German people should be coerced into accepting a hand-picked constitution; that her territory should be overrun; that her cities should be laid waste; that her rulers should be exiled or executed; nor that impossible penalties of any kind be laid on her people.

It does mean that there should be no peace until the Prussian idea is thoroly rebuked and that the world's human and economic resources shall never again be placed on the altar of military cynicism and ruthlessness. It does mean that every government under the sun shall recognize that RIGHT is greater than might and that no government shall in the future hold itself superior to Justice and the Golden Rule.

When this war is over autocracy must have learned that while democracy is the weakest of all forms of government for aggression, IT IS THE STRONGEST FOR DEFENSE. It must also learn that territorial aggrandizement, monetary indemnification, special trade privilege, the domination of colonies are part and parcel of the out-worn feudal baggage of an imperial regime. As has been aptly said "they all represent burdens that fall on the common people for the benefit of an ascendant class."

If the real aim of the United States for entering the war is to make liberal civilization secure from autocratic aggression it is a just aim and we should not be diverted from the accomplishment of that aim by any temporizing plea for a negotiated peace. Whether or not we were unprepared for war, we certainly should not be found unprepared for peace, for just now the talk of peace is quite as menacing as that of war.

The State War Board Says Today:

"Save Food" is the Nation's wartime watchword.

What you can't can, dry.

Dried corn, especially, should be a war food this year. Cans and other containers are scarce. Grandmother's old-time method of drying sweet corn makes a palatable food.

Husk corn when ripe; drop ears in boiling water and cook 2 to 5 minutes, or place in steamer 5 to 10 minutes. Slice kernels from cob with sharp flexible knife. Spread thinly on trays to dry. Corn may be dried on pans in oven in 2 to 4 hours at 110 to 145 degrees. Or corn may be dried in the sun, starting first with 10 to 15 minutes in the oven. The grains must be stirred occasionally during drying.

When dried, pack in glass, boxes, or empty coffee cans. Pour from one container to another once a day for 2 or 4 days so as to mix thoroly and insure an even degree of moisture.

Corn when too old to dry, makes a fine winter breakfast food. When brought from field, husk and store. When wanted, shell, parch in oven or on stove, and grind in meat grinder or household mill.

THE MEEK GERMANS

BY WALT MASON

"This war," the German statesmen say, "was forced on us, against our will; we tried so hard to dodge the fray! It grieved our hearts that we must kill. 'Tis true we built a war machine, the greatest ever known to fame; but we contend we didn't mean to use it with a warlike aim. 'Twas just a thing of pomp and state, to use upon occasions gay; with it we hoped to celebrate the German Fourth and Groundhog Day. We looked upon the martial psalm as one would look on sounding brass, and Mary's famous little lamb, for meekness, wasn't in our class. 'Tis true our navy grew apace, thru many years we built it up; but we were planning for a race with England, for a silver cup. We had no purpose to eclipse the British might, despite reports; our only plot in building ships was just to boost all manly sports. We only wished to go our course in quietness, year after year, and whoop for peace until too hoarse to whoop for anything but beer. But no, they would not let us be, to earn in peace our bed and board; they climbed our frame on land and sea, and so we had to draw the sword. And so we ask the world to note, and to recall on that dread day when we have lost one Wilhelmgoat, that we were forced into the fray."

His Home is Different Now

Painters Gratitude to the Neal Institute

Touching in its simplicity and in its picture of a happy home is this letter from a former Neal patient in the pottery district of Ohio: "I surely have a different home now," he writes; "we all feel the since I came home. My wife said she was going to raise my board if I did not quit eating so much. My boy is very good to me; does anything to please me. I am working at my trade and painting his auto. I certainly will call on you every time I come to Cleveland."

So in these letters that come every day from former patients to the physician in charge at the Neal Institute, and every one tells of a home made happy once more by release of a father, a son or a husband from the clutches of the drink habit. How hard it was for family or friends to persuade them that the Neal Treatment would help them, when all other means had failed. But now they bless those true friends, and wherever they go they spread the story of how the Neal Treatment conquers drink.

Over 3,500 such men are in Ohio and Pennsylvania alone, and scattered over the globe are tens of thousands more who have been helped in their fight against booze in the sixty Neal Institutes located in principal cities of the world.

The Neal Treatment destroys the desire for drink by cleansing the system of the cause—the poison of alcohol. It builds up the body cells that were degenerating under the excessive stimulus of alcohol; it steadies the nerves and brings a man once more back to normal. In such condition the man who has taken the Neal Treatment has an intensely healthy dislike for anything alcoholic. This is what the Neal Treatment does quickly, safely, easily.

The Neal Treatment has been endorsed by business men all over the State. They send their own valuable employes to the Neal Institute to save them from the drink habit, proving beyond question that the Neal Treatment is the one treatment that can be safely and confidently used for the treatment of alcoholism.

A regular physician and trained attendants give individual treatment according to the needs of the patient. This is the reason why the Neal Treatment has succeeded where other treatments failed.

Investigate fully and carefully, we mean you. Learn all about drink habit treatment—what they are and what they have done. Come any time and ask us all the questions you care to. The Neal Institute is always open. Write for booklet or call on the Neal Way on phone Avon 4000. Neal Institute, 601 Maple Ave., Avondale, Cincinnati, Ohio. "HYNEYS," A FEATURE WITH SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS HERE SATURDAY, SEPT. 8.

"One of the oldest things I have—thus now, something new, is the cry of the public. In order to make the circus a success this season, "something new" must constantly be produced.

"This saying applies to automobiles and everything. The old man who saw the opening circus in former years would hardly recognize the circus of today as the outgrowth of the primitive circus of Ivan Rice or Dan Rice. The circus of today is common to the circus than is now is curious people and horses.

"The Sells-Floto circus is constantly in the market for new things, and the competition among circus folk in producing something new is the secret of the high strides made to the state of greater magnitude in the universe of circus.

"The person who says he has seen all circuses when he has seen one is of that class of persons who stand still."

War Pictures Please Crowd

The Mystic theatre war pictures met than pleased the two big houses that witnessed them last night, and this afternoon Company I will be the guests of Manager Herbig. The new armored war truck will be on exhibition in front of the theatre this afternoon and evening.

The British War Pictures are real. No previous films have ever shown such scenes of actual fighting.

Those who have seen them marvel that the camera man escaped with his life, for his pictures prove that he was in the very thick of the action, with shells bursting near him and bullets whistling all around him.

Show Tanks in Action.

These views are closeups of the fighting men of Europe in the thick of a critical engagement in the greatest war of all history. They were taken as they flashed in by a charge, perhaps on their way to death.

They also show those new military monsters of destruction, the tanks, cutting a path thru the human ranks at the battle of the Ancre. For vividness and accuracy, war experts say, nothing has ever equaled these British war pictures. See them today for the last time at the Mystic.

To polish mahogany furniture that has a blue-gray appearance: To about a quart of clear water add a tablespoonful of good strong vinegar. In the solution saturate a clean chamois and wring as dry as possible, rub lightly the surface to be cleaned and polish with dry cheesecloth. If first application does not remove the cloudy look, repeat the operation in about a week.

Test of Spruce Gum.

The test of a good chew of spruce gum is first in the taste, then in the color. If there is no trace of turpentine in the taste—not more than an agreeable bitterness as the lump is first crushed in the mouth, then it is good gum. If, after a few minutes' chewing, the cud shows a pinkish lavender shade, then it is perfect gum.

Juice of Lemons! How to Make Skin White and Beautiful

At the cost of small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice thru a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as sallowness, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it. Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful to smoothen rough, red hands.

GRANDMOTHER'S BOTANIC MEDICINE

In every pioneer home the botanic recipes of our grandmothers for the treatment of disease were wonderfully dependable. Every fall she gathered her various herbs: thoroughwort, camomile, sage, pennyroyal, wormwood, rue, etc. It is interesting to note that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the most successful remedy for female ills we have, was originally prepared for home use from one of these botanic recipes and the demand for this famous medicine has grown until over 350,000 pounds of roots and herbs are used annually in its preparation. It will well repay any woman who suffers from female ills to give this famous medicine a trial.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

How a Mine Was Located

By BARBARA PHIPPS

Tom Grosvenor was a prospector in Colorado in the early days when the country was wild and the people were as wild as the country. Tom had left a wife in the east and had gone to the gold fields to make his fortune. Many a hole he had dug and abandoned, but at last, one day while working all alone with his pick, he unearthed some quartz that looked peculiar. He took it to an assayer, and it analyzed $100 to the ton.

It had been arranged between Tom and his wife that if he found any valuable property he was to send her a description of it, the facts stated being certified by others, and she was to make an effort to get capital for its development. As soon as he got the assayer's report on his specimens he wrote her an announcement of the fact, stating that he would send further information later.

Colorado in those days was full of claim jumpers, and Grosvenor realized the importance of keeping his find a secret. Unfortunately one person, the assayer, knew that he had struck it rich, and the knowledge that a new and valuable find had been made got out through him. Tom saw that the preservation of his property could be secured only by shrewd management. He alone knew where his mine was situated, and it behooved him to form a plan by which he might convey its location to his wife without any one else understanding the description.

The reasons for this were several. In the first place, if he should die he wished his wife to inherit his find. In the second, he felt sure that he was being watched, and if he were seen going to the mine he might be followed and, having thus revealed its locality, be put out of the way in order that his murderers would the more easily appropriate it. He resolved to make one trip, fix its location, then await means for its development.

On his arrival he looked over the ground for the purpose of leaving a mark that would not be recognized as such. Of course he must give his wife the general location; the exact spot would be indicated by a key which she alone would recognize. He could not give her this key in a letter any more than he could give her the exact location of his find, for he believed his mail would be watched and purloined. Indeed, he had experimented in this and found the experimental letter had been opened.

Grosvenor laid a scheme to guide his wife to his mine, and it was well that he did so, for two days later he was arrested on a trumped up charge by conspirators, who gave him his choice to await a trial for which they had manufactured testimony or to hand over his mine to them.

Mrs. Grosvenor, who was a smart woman, on receipt of the letter announcing the find went to several capitalists and secured from them an agreement that if the proofs were satisfactory they would form a company for its development. This done, she went to Colorado.

On her arrival she heard of her husband's arrest. She was permitted to see him, but he dare not give her any information as to the location of the mine, for he felt sure that there would be listeners ready to receive and avail themselves of what he said. Mrs. Grosvenor took in the situation, and a hint her husband gave her told her that if she looked for the property she would find it. At least she would find guidance. He dare only say to her, "South side of Indian gulch, a mile up from the mouth."

Mrs. Grosvenor set out for the gulch and on reaching it strapped a pedometer about her waist and walked the mile it indicated. Then she began to search for a clew. In a weed she found on the trunk of a tree the bark chipped off to form an arrow, which pointed up the side of the gulch. She set out in the direction indicated and after proceeding a few hundred yards came to a sandstone cliff, on which had been carved a tomahawk, the handle of which pointed along the cliff eastward. This led her to a post on which there was a cross. In the post was a hole. Ten feet from the post was another post with two crosses on it, one above and another below a hole. This seemed to end the matter, for the woman saw no further guide mark. Presently it occurred to her to look through the hole in the upper post, and her eye caught the hole in the lower one. The second was much larger than the first, and through it she saw a stake. Pulling it up on the lower part that had been in the ground were the initials of her name, J. T. G., Jane Turner Grosvenor.

Was this the location of the mine or were there further guides? On a tree near by was cut a finger pointing. Mrs. Grosvenor followed its direction till she came to some loose earth and stones, under which she found a pick and shovel.

She inferred that the stake indicated the mine, and the pick and shovel were for her use. With them she removed some specimens of ore and returned to the place from which she had started. She at once had her specimens assayed, and they gave the same results as those taken out by her husband.

It was some time before there was any profit in the mine, but it came at last. As soon as those who had been at the bottom of Grosvenor's arrest learned that this mine had passed into the hands of a company they withdrew their charge, and he went free.

May Increase Bond Issues

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, AUG. 27.—Two billion dollars may be added to the total of the bonds to be authorized at the present session of congress, making a total of twenty-one billion dollars available to the government during the fiscal year up to June 30, 1918.

WASHINGTON, AUG. 27.—Consideration of the largest single financial bill in the history of the United States, the $11,538,945,000 war bond and certificate proposal, was begun today by the house ways and means committee. Plans were to pass it this week, if possible. Differences in the committee centered around the proposal to tax the issues, and with this cleared up it appeared that passage would be expedited.

As drafted by Secretary McAdoo and laid before the committee, the measure would authorize the issuance of $7,538,945,000 worth of bonds to meet allied loans and $2,000,000,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness and war savings certificates, respectively, to discharge other obligations not designated. All would draw four per cent. interest and the subject only to supertaxes and war profits and excess profits taxes.

Substitute taxation proposals cover a wide range, including a straight levy of six per cent. on the interest returns and the flat income tax. These varying plans represent personal opinions of members without regard to party affiliations.

Plans For Future Issues.

In addition to discussing the proposed issues, general discussion of the financing situation will be indulged in with a view to evolving a definite plan for possible future issues. The convertibility feature, brought to the fore by the provision of the present bill to permit exchange of previous three and a half per cent. war authorizations for the new issues is expected to cause much debate. Several members were opposed to permitting future conversion of bonds bearing four per cent. for higher interest bearing issues regardless of the state of the money market.

Work in the house, which meets Tuesday, for resumption of regular sessions following a period of three-day recesses, will depend largely upon progress made in the ways and means committee. Optimistic members hope that the bond bill will be presented to the house by Thursday.

TO CHILLICOTHE.

Lieut. Harry Rodgers, of South Eighth street, will leave this noon to report for duty at Camp Sheridan, Chillicothe.

BRIES PLANS FOR FOOT BALL TEAM THIS SEASON

Otto Bries, manager of the Federal baseball club, has called for football candidates to meet Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce hall.

Several managers from other cities have written to Bries to make a schedule. Macelibon has asked that Coshocton come here and open the season. Bries says he will not devote any time after Wednesday night to the interest of football unless there is enough young candidates for the positions.

VOGEL'S VAST VENTURE.

A local manager who had growled at the proprietor of the Big City Minstrels exacting a very large percentage for his enormous entertainment, when he realized the investment, extravagantly expended in the outfit and confessed it when he said: "My stars, Vogel, it is no wonder that you demand almost the whole loaf for your receipts. Private palace cars, $10,000 first part, a superbly equipped street parade, and the support, transportation and salaries for fifty people, certainly does tie up a power of money and requires a lot of coin to keep the fabric going, and with all your rivals tell me that you are walking on velvet," adding the truism, "the people demand a good deal now-a-days." Vogel added an assent as he remarked: "It was not always thus; it is a matter of fact that in 1868 a popular Ethiopian comedian sold his horse and buggy and put a troupe of fourteen people on the road with the proceeds and fairly astonished the natives."

John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels will appear at the 6th St. Theatre Tomorrow night. Seats now selling.

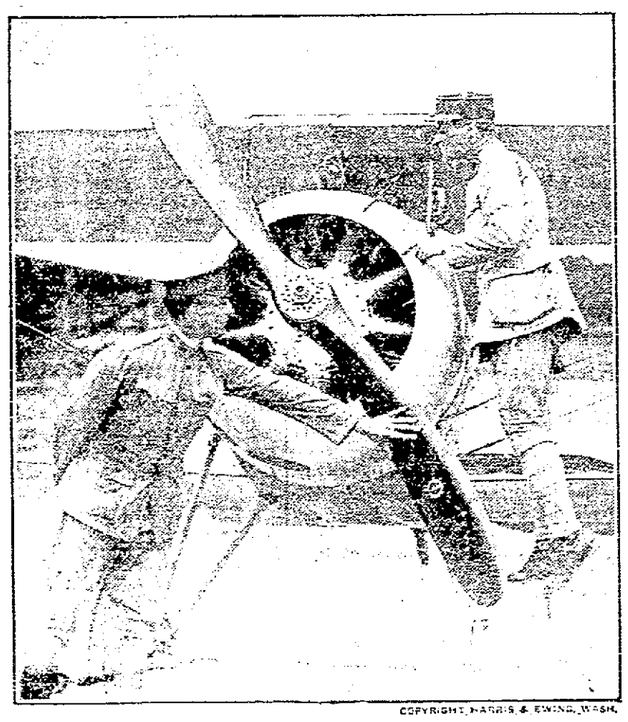
Early Indians Raised Corn.

The white man found corn in use by the Indians in Virginia. In most other countries it is known as maize, and in English texts it is referred to as Indian corn. When the snow is on the Illinois corn fields, the Argentine corn fields are ripening. The largest producing areas are in the United States, Mexico, Austria-Hungary and Italy.

Nobody Knows.

Nobody can advise you how to rear your children, because the fact of the matter is that nobody really knows how it ought to be done. Bringing up your child in the way it should go is a pretty big job.

DARE DEVIL FRENCH FLIER AND NIEUPORT BATTLE PLANE.



COPYRIGHT, HARRIS & EWING, WASH.

Lieut. R. Lenoir, of the French flying corps, who made a sensational demonstration flight for Secretary of War Baker a short time ago, is shown here pointing out the attributes of his Nieuport battle plane to Capt. J. C. Bartolf, in command of the station. The machine gun, which the French officer is looking at, is operated by the one passenger-driver, and its shots are so timed that they cannot hit the rapidly revolving propeller blades.

DOWELL PROVES TOO MUCH FOR CAMBRIDGE-BYESVILLE AGGREGATION HERE SUNDAY

Dowell was too strong for the Cambridge-Byesville nine Sunday afternoon at the Red Sox, the Feds winning by a score of 4 to 1. Dowell again made a good strike-out record, whiffing 16 C-B batsmen.

The visitors lacked "pep" and showed poor form, altho "Ely" Pollack, of New Concord, former pitcher for the Muskingum college team, pitched a good game for the Guernsey county men.

Henry Clark's baserunning was a feature of the game Sunday. Clark stole four bases and scored two of the Feds counts. Harry Laird was effective with the bat, securing a double and single in three trips to the plate.

Next Sunday afternoon and Monday forenoon the Akron Goodlows will oppose the Feds.

Entitled to Service.

Paul was one morning sitting in his high chair, impatiently drumming for his breakfast of oatmeal and oranges. Mother was busy getting the other children off to school and Paul thought himself neglected. So he said, "Muver, I've lived here two years, so I fink I should have some 'tention."

When Women Ruled.

Ethiopia was described by the Greeks and Romans as the country which lay to the south of Egypt. Shortly before the birth of Jesus a native dynasty of women holding the official title of Candace held sway in Ethiopia and even resisted the advance of Roman arms. One of these is the queen noticed in Acts 8:27.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fruits and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

Origin of Minerals.

According to one account, Gerbert, afterwards Pope Sylvester II, learned the use of the numerals from the Moors in Spain in the tenth century. Another account is that Leonardo of Pisa introduced them from the East into Italy about 1202. The use of them was not general until the invention of printing.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring back color, youthfulness and lustre—Everybody is using it again.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this thru the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

ITALIANS CONTINUE ONSLAUGHT

Somewhat slowly but nevertheless surely the Italians are breaking thru the Austrian resistance in the region around Monte Santo north of Gorizie and making their way eastward toward the border of Carniola.

In their endeavor to hold back the Italians the Austrians have brot to this sector a large number of fresh men and the last report said the fighting was most intense but with the Italians having overcome the resistance of the Austrians at various points.

Virtually nothing is vouchsafed in the Italian official communication. The Italian war office evidently desires to conceal the exact objective of the Italian troops.

On the front in France the Germans have been throwing counter attacks against the French line in the region of Verdun, but not only have the French forces maintained their gains, but have taken 11,000 prisoners.

Likewise on the Aisne front the German Crown Prince is keeping up his offensive against the French, but there also the Germans are meeting defeat.

The Berlin war office reports the capture of Russian positions between Riga and Dvinsk, but make no mention of the resumption of the operations begun last week against the Russians. The Russo Rumanian troops are still holding their own against the invasion of the Germans.

He Lost a Rib and Got a Wife

By OSCAR COX

It was shortly after the great united drive began on the part of the French and the English against the Germans. They were bringing the English wounded to the rear, where the surgeons were attending to them in the recently constructed hospitals. A young officer was carried into one of these hospitals, where equipment for operating had been prepared in advance of the drive, and laid on the operating table. The only assistant who could be spared for that particular operation was a Red Cross nurse. The patient was in too critical a condition to notice his surroundings.

A fragment of a shell had struck the man in the breast and broken several ribs, so crushing one of them that the surgeon felt it necessary to remove it. When the operation was concluded and the patient returned to consciousness he feebly asked the doctor what he had done. He was told of the removal of his rib. He lay quiet while the doctor attended to another patient, and when he returned to observe the condition of the first the man, who meanwhile had been removed to a camp cot, said to him:

"You say, doctor, that you have taken a rib from my side."

"Yes."

"And this woman," pointing to the nurse, "is the result."

Supposing that the patient was delirious, the surgeon, not willing to irritate him, assented.

"Well, then, I suppose I'm Adam and the woman is Eve. Were Adam and Eve married?"

"I don't know about that."

"Well, in these days couples are married. Bring a chaplain."

The surgeon looked from the patient to the nurse. She was regarding the wounded man with great anxiety.

"Come; hurry up," pursued the patient. "I may not pull through this, and I want Eve to inherit my property. If I don't have a legal heir there'll be no end of a fight among a lot of vultures."

Again the surgeon looked at the nurse. She was very much affected. She gave the doctor no clew as to her willingness to be thus suddenly married and made heir presumptive to a fortune.

"You're not going to die," said the surgeon to the patient, "at least not of this wound. You may get another that will carry you off."

"Never mind that. You do what I tell you to do. Get a chaplain."

"Are you agreed?" asked the latter of the nurse.

Still he received no reply. But, assuming that with a woman silence gives consent, he called a hospital steward and sent him for a chaplain, who came from one dying man to another whom he thought to be dying. Kneeling beside the cot, he was about to offer a prayer when the patient interrupted him.

"Get up. I don't want to be prayed into heaven; I want to be married."

"Oh!" The chaplain looked at the surgeon for an explanation. The surgeon looked at the nurse, thereby referring the matter to her. The patient put out a hand, took hers and drew her toward his cot.

"Proceed," said the invalid.

Since the nurse offered no objection the chaplain proceeded with the marriage service. He had barely finished when he was called upon to attend a man in the agony of death and was about to hurry away when the groom called him.

"Hold on," he said. "The bride wants a certificate."

The chaplain, whose duties involved taking down farewell messages, was provided with writing materials, which he took out and, using the operating table for a desk, wrote out a certificate of marriage, leaving a blank space for the names. Then he turned to the newly married couple to supply the information.

"Captain Ralph D. Chamberlin," said the groom, "and Lady Gladys Penn Gaskell."

Both the surgeon and the chaplain looked from the groom to the bride, surprised.

"Witness this union," said the groom, "and don't you forget it. We two are not strangers by any means. We wanted to be married long ago, but Lady Gladys' parents had other plans for her. Fate has been a good friend to us in putting me into the war and making her a nurse. But fate might have done the trick without playing this Adam and Eve game. It doesn't hurt Eve, but it's a rotten hard on Adam. Do you really think, doctor, that I can get on without her in my breast?"

"No," replied the surgeon, "you can't get on with her in, but you won't die without your rib."

Despite the seriousness of the situation and the distressing scenes near them, a smile appeared on the faces of the little group, except the bride, who sank on her knees beside her newly made husband and folded him in her arms.

By this marriage the bride came into possession of a fine estate which otherwise would have been divided to pieces by a hundred heirs. She nursed her husband to health, but he returned to the front was struck again and was killed. The case is referred to by those who know about it not as a wedding, but a deathbed will. Captain Chamberlin could hardly have made a will at the time but the marriage certificate was much harder to contest than the other document.

Brought By Gerard

It is believed the evidence tending to show Germany's war plans on the United States was brought here by James Gerard, on his return from Berlin as American ambassador to Germany.

Gerard himself has frequently said the Teutons had their eyes on this country and Lord Robert Cecil claimed to have proof of this.

Vast amount of data showing the sort of intrigue woven about America by the kaiser's agents are filed away in the State Department. They afford President Wilson the opportunity he will take soon of showing why America cannot deal on friendly terms with Germany as long as the kaiser reigns.
